High Aggression Disc Brushes

are densely filled with an exclusive nylon abrasive filament that significantly increases aggression. Their ability to remove large burrs or to operate at elevated feed rates while still maintaining part geometry broadens the range of applications that are candidates for in-machine deburring with disc brushes.

Operating Parameters for High Aggression Disc Brushes

The fill density of High Aggression Disc Brushes requires that they be used at slightly lower spindle speeds and reduced amounts of engagement in comparison to tufted disc brushes of the same diameter.

Brush	Speed	DOI*	Wet/Dry
3 Dia. Disc Brush	1500 - 1700	.025 - .100	Wet
4 Dia. Disc Brush	1200 - 1500	.025 - .100	Wet
5 Dia. Disc Brush	1000 - 1200	.025 - .100	Wet
6 Dia. Disc Brush	900 - 1100	.025 - .100	Wet
9 Dia. Disc Brush	700 - 900	.025 - .100	Wet

* Depth of interference

** The use of coolant is not only recommended but required in almost all applications due to the aggressive brushing action produced by High Aggression Disc Brushes.
